You say all lives matter but you shoot,

Yet now you prosecute,

For what?

For crimes that were not,

Those families who have lost,

There is no cost,

For the damage,

For the pain you have caused.

You say all lives matter but they don't,

Not to you,

Not to those who shoot.

Those last words,

Those that mean the most.

I CAN'T BREATHE!

I DON'T HAVE A GUN!

CAN I GET MY ID?

PLEASE DON'T LET ME DIE!

Those words cut deep,

They won't sleep,

Until they get justice,

Their fight matters,

They'll carry on fighting until those who committed these acts of injustice are prosecuted.

They shouldn't have to fight this battle.

Where do you stand in this war of injustice?

NO lives matter until black lives matter.

This is our World

This is our World,
It belongs to us all.
It does not matter,
Whether you are big or small.

This is our World,
So beautiful and bright.
It does not matter,
Whether you are black or white,

This is our World,
Let's open our door.
It does not matter,
Whether you are rich or poor.

This is our World,
And you are you.
It does not matter,
If you are LGBTQ.

This is our World,
We all deserve rights.
So now is the time,
We stop the fights.

This is our World,
So kind and caring.
So now is the time,
To start repairing.

This is our World,
We are all unique.
There is no place,
For any negative critique.

This is our World,
Let's all unite.
And put an end,
To the hatred fright.

Cohan Burnham, Year 11

Unity Is Our Strength

Unity is like the weather, changing every day,
From scorching sun to freezing snow,
Wild winds spread through the trees.

Unity is like marshmallows swamped in warm chocolate,
It's like stuffed crust pizza packed with cheese.
Unity is just like mint, strong and sweet.

Unity is like reading from non-fiction to fiction,
Each book special in its own way.
Books are packed with adventure for all to explore.

Unity is like sloppy glue, sticking us together,
Without it we will come apart.
No friends to guide us and no family to love.

Unity is teamwork, together all the time,
Like two hands of a clock, they chime together.
You take down one of us, you take down all of us...
Unity is our strength.

William Stacey, Zakim Haif- Thompson, Amy Ortola, Emily Moss, Scarlett Oeser, Year 5

We all stand together

Unity is the sweetness in sugar,
Unity is Christmas, bringing everyone together.
Unity is the caramel on the top layer of a Twix,
We stand together.

Unity is our rhythm,
Unity is our rhyme.
We all stand together,
Against hate crime.

Unity is the first bite of candyfloss,
Unity is the sweetness in sweets.
We all matter in this world,
Makes no difference what skin you have.

Unity is our rhythm,
Unity is our rhyme.
We all stand together,
Against hate crime.

Scarlett Myton and Nikola Szynalska, Year 5

We Stand Proud

What if I were you and you were me?
When we stand together stronger we will be.

Unity wouldn't be great if friends crumbled like grains of sand.

Unity is the last bubble in a Pespi Max,
Its snow falling as white as a sheet.

Unity is like the sourest of lollipops,
Just waiting to blow your mind.

Whereas strength is my Grandma,
Why? You ask,
Because she is full of love, love, love.

What if I were you and you were me?
When we stand together stronger we will be.

This poem is about togetherness in the world,
Unity is strong, unity is when we all stand together.
